

Passenger Floorboards – make ‘em pretty.

I chose black semi-gloss paint to match the frame, but it would also be nice to match your bike color. I also installed a reflector which looks nice on my Red Rider.

Here's a view of the paint setup. It allows you to move around covering the bottom surface and the sides without masking. I took this pic after the assembly was put together – I suggest painting with the rubber and reflector removed for best results.

After assembly to the bike, I touched-up the hardware with paint and a small brush for a clean finished look.

With this approach it is not necessary to remove the whiskers as they blend-in well.
